Summer Membership Down!

Those of you reading this issue of the Squeeze (unless you're reading it because someone gave it to you at some point in time after the meeting) are keenly aware that "school's out for summer" as far as weekly attendance numbers go. The main impact of all this is that the Fresh Squeeze printing department has no idea of just how many issues to print (on the weeks that they are actually printed, that is). Each week, either huge masses of paper are destroyed for naught or there are several people clamoring for possession of a single issue. Let's all try to get to these Summer meetings and even out the Squeeze flow.

Rotarian Held Captive

The International Community is now in a state of uproar due to the recent release of photos of one of our own Cisterns being held against her will by wild, party-going, booze swilling, wind breaking, curse muttering fellow Rotarians. This photo is the only one made available to this paper but it graphically illustrates the sheer terror in the mind of the captive. She was "encouraged" to consume intoxicating drinks that blurred her senses and caused her to reveal many of the secrets she had been sworn to harbor over the years.

The President's Gossip Page

Good Morning fellow Rotarians! Well I made it through my first meeting, with only a few snafus! The next time I have the "Skinetts" sing, I will play a song they KNOW. Thanks ladies for being good sports about it. You will never know what I went through to get a song to play that had something to do with women, and they did not know what song it was until that morning. I guess we have a new respect for our "Four Skins" singers.

But now on to business at hand: as you know I passed out a survey sheet and asked for some input from the membership. This wonderful idea came from the leadership manual that I was given from the PETS training. I thought sure, it sounds like a good idea. I would like to thank the four members who took the time to answer some of the questions, and share some ideas with me. I will try to implement some of your ideas!

I received a nice note from Bobbi Kemp, who said she saw Jon Pomeroy working the river panning for gold! Could it be? She also wanted to thank John Pellizzon for coming to the rescue and getting someone out to her daughter's house right away, when she reported a major leak! Bobbi is trying to get to a Rotary meeting; we shall see when she returns. As far as the Presidency goes, I've really have enjoyed myself, so far. Thanks to Terry Wysocki for showing the video again last week from the Kick-Out party, it was great! Thanks to all that worked on it!

Groaner Joke of the Week

After a long night of passion, the young guy rolled over, pulled out a cigarette from his jeans and searched for his lighter. Unable to find it, he asked the girl if she had one at hand.

"There might be some matches in the top drawer," she replied.

He opened the drawer of the bedside table and found matches sitting neatly on top of a framed picture of another man. Naturally, the guy began to worry.

"Is this your husband?" he inquired nervously.

"No, silly," she replied, snuggling up to him.

"Your boyfriend then?" he asked.

"No, not at all," she said, nibbling away at his ear.

"Well, who is he then?" demanded the bewildered guy.

Calmly, she replied, "That's me before the operation."

Restaurant Review

This week's spontaneous restaurant review focuses on one of the newest "hot ticket" restaurants opened in the tri-cities area, The Elephant Bar. I was always puzzled why there were people overflowing out of the doors so I decided to check it out. The room is nicely decorated somewhere between west LA chic and Nairobi primitive. The bartender didn't even make eye contact as he took my $6.50 for a beer. Once seated at the table, the waiter suggested Jambalaya from the Spartan menu. Believe me, I love spicy food, but this is about as hot as Cajun gets (maybe it's intended just to sell more beer)! The platters of ribs that my associates ordered were mixed. By that, I mean that one of the plates held several meaty and tasty ribs, while the other had just a few, emaciated, burnt offerings. So much for consistency. Overall the food was acceptable if you wanted to wait about an hour or two on a Friday night. While standing out there, I couldn't help longing for the old Bob's Big Boy that used to be right across the street.
